We address the problem of estimating the parameters of a generative Adversarial Network (GAN), which can efficiently learn the joint distribution of inputs and outputs in the unsupervised learning scenario. To do so, we learn a conditional generative model using convolutional neural networks (CNNs) in order to extend GANs to an arbitrary number of input variables. We show that this conditional generative model can be learned from random numbers without any back-propagation and only with optimization of a loss function. Our experimental results show that we can achieve a lower cost using our models in comparison with the existing methods. Sorry, this video is no longer available. had not mentioned Extinction Rebellion. Presenter Sir David Attenborough had just made a reference to rising temperatures when the group's "lead person" suddenly leapt onto the set of the show. Screaming at Sir David, the activists say they represent "millions of people who want to live" and can see climate change happening around them. When they were asked if they had any questions for Sir David, one of the protesters said: "We could ask you questions about climate change." Sir David told the group: "The BBC exists to report the news of the world and we
