encoding findstr "UTF-8" filelist.txt if errorlevel 1 ( echo %%i | findstr UTF-8 REM if we found the encoding in the output there is no need to check the source echo %%i | findstr UTF-8) else (echo %%i set var="%%i"))) for /f "tokens=1* delims=:" %%i in ('findstr "^" filelist.txt') do (set var="%%i") REM ----- REM Execute the conversion program REM ----- start "" notepad.exe "C:\Tools\converter.bat" "%var%" endlocal I use this to import my images into my web app. Using a bat file and running it in the system directory is the easiest way to get it to run on all machines. The variable %var% points to the new filename and you can safely remove the "C:\Tools" directory as the files will not be transferred anywhere. . They're the ones that have a great time while you work. They're the ones that you can let your guard down a little bit, or you can have fun with, and they're not there to point out what you should or shouldn't do. Because you know what? You shouldn't need permission to have fun. You shouldn't need permission to feel. You shouldn't need permission to cry. I think if you don't take a step back and put yourself in the shoes of other
