5. The following figure shows an image in the Photoshop Elements editor. I've created a new blank image and named it titled _Ashley.JPG_. I'm going to apply an action to the _image_ layer and then create a second layer to overlay text. (Yes, this _is_ pretty easy!) Figure 2-7 shows the image when I click the Layers button in the upper left. Figure 2-7: To create a layer, you need to select the _Layer_ menu and choose Add Layer. Creating an action is the first step to creating a photoshopped image in Photoshop Elements. Click on the Edit Menu and choose Actions to open the Actions dialog box, as shown in the following figure. Next, click on the new action to create the action or go to the New Action dialog box that appears, as shown in the following figure. 6. Enter a name for your action as shown in the following figure (_Ashley_Action in this case) and click OK. 7. The Actions panel displays all the actions you have created. Choose the _Ashley_Action from this list and then click the OK button. The Actions panel changes to display the action steps in the order they should be performed, as shown in Figure 2-8. 8. Click on the _Ashley_Action to display the list of steps. Click the Step 1 button to edit the first step. The next figure shows this list. If you're a Photoshop Pro customer with CS6, you can use the Start and Stop buttons instead of the arrow/toggle buttons. Figure 2-8 shows the list. This is the same list shown in the preceding figure except that the list now looks like Figure 2-9. Figure 2-8: To add a new layer to the image, choose Add Layer from the Layers panel. Figure 2-9: You can use the Start and Stop buttons to add a new layer. You now have two layers on your image. Figure 2-10 shows what you see. Notice that you can double-click on a layer to choose which layer you want to see. Figure 2-10: Double-clicking on a layer opens it so you can see what is on it. You may also drag the layer on the Layers panel to move it. It's hard to notice without using the tool.
