Great for anyone wanting to tap into their intuition to bring a powerful windfall into their life. Neurotrophin-3 and osteoarthritis. Osteoarthritis (OA) is the most common form of arthritis in many countries. It is a complex disease characterized by progressive degeneration of articular cartilage accompanied by defects in the synovium and subchondral bone. A protective mechanical microenvironment in which chondrocytes maintain their differentiated state is necessary to maintain cartilage integrity. Aneurysms, degeneration of the meniscus, and osteophyte formation may form the ossification process of articular cartilage, and tendons in the joint may tear and the synovial membrane become inflamed. Neurotrophin 3, a neurotrophic factor belonging to the nerve growth factor family, is known to play important roles in neurogenesis, neuronal survival, and neurite outgrowth. Our hypothesis is that neurotrophin-3 is also involved in joint structure and function as a member of the cytokine family and that the neurotrophin system is a therapeutic target for OA. In this review, neurotrophin-3 in the joint and its implications in OA, especially with regard to pain, are discussed.
